

VISIONS OF A ONE EYED HORSE

Conover

Funny things were happening with Sigany. It started out with her acting real crazy one spring, jumpy-like, running from nothing. Then one day when Joey was shoeing her, just for a moment, he noticed some strange kind of light in her eye. Things so little, I almost forgot to mention them to the vet when he stopped at the barn one day. "Blind... she's blind in one eye. I'd say she's got moon blindness. They don't know what brings it on - folks used to think it came on little bit at a time during the full moons." And just that quickly, Sigany was not just full of spring nerves, but was a moon blind mare.

So here we are my mare

only this time

one of us, half blind.

I'm trying, but what do you see now on your blind side that scares you into a sweat? What's in that line of trees that makes you stop dead, not to be moved till you are sure it's okay? Then what makes it okay? Is there some special sign that that one fence post on the road must give before we can go on? The strange things I see don't bother you at all. Sometimes I get a feeling you see more now, not less... maybe you've got visions, visions from the moon.

Funny things were happening with Sigany. It started out with her acting real crazy one spring, jumpy-like, running from nothing. Then one day when Joey was shoeing her, just for a moment, he noticed some strange kind of light in her eye. Things so little, I almost forgot to mention them to the vet when he stopped at the barn one day. "Blind... she's blind in one eye. I'd say she's got moon blindness. They don't know what brings it on - folks used to think it came on little bit at a time during the full moons." And just that quickly, Sigany was not just full of spring nerves, but was a moon blind mare.

So here we are my mare

only this time

I'm trying, but what do you see now on your blind side that scares you into a sweat? What's in that line of trees that makes you stop dead, not to be moved till you are sure it's okay? Then what makes it okay? Is there some special sign that that one fence post on the road must give before we can go on? The strange things I see don't bother you at all. Sometimes I get a feeling you see more now, not less... maybe you've got visions, visions from the moon.

